He went on to complete his fellowship in Gastroenterology at Lankenau in June of 2010. Dr. Kearney is published in the areas of treatment of Hepatitis C with Dr. Victor Navarro, chief of the Hepatology at Thomas Jefferson, and in the pharmacology of proton pump inhibitors with his mentors at Lankenau.

Dr. Kearney is well trained in all standard endoscopic procedures including ERCP and capsule endoscopy.

Dr. Kearney is an avid sports enthusiast and enjoys alpine skiing, baseball and cooking. He and his wife Suzann currently reside in Lansdale, PA.

Bux-Mont Endoscopy Center Passes AAAHC

Bux-Mont Endoscopy Center is proud to announce accreditation by the AAAHC (Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care). Our center passed on our very first survey and was granted its maximum three year accreditation. Status as an accredited facility means that the Bux-Mont Endoscopy Center has met nationally recognized standards for the provision of quality health care.

Not all ambulatory health facilities seek accreditation nor do all facilities achieve accreditation after undergoing the required on-site survey. AAAHC is a private, non-profit organization formed in 1979 to assist ambulatory health care centers to improve the quality of care provided to patients. The accreditation process by the AAAHC involves an extensive self-assessment and a rigorous on-site survey based on national standards and guidelines and is performed by expert surveyors who are physicians, nurses, and administrators actively involved in ambulatory healthcare.

Our success at the Bux-Mont Endoscopy Center is due to the hard work and commitment of all of our staff. The administration, physicians, nurses, technicians and clerical staff all realize the importance of caring for our patients as individuals while maintaining the superb standards of medical care. AAAHC accreditation is recognized as a symbol of quality by medical organizations, insurers, state and federal agencies and the public. We believe that attaining this certification is proof of our commitment to providing the highest quality of care as should be expected by our patients and the medical community.
